THE CORONAVIRUS: COVID-19

The United States and the world face the potential for a dangerous global outbreak of the respiratory disease known as COVID-19 - the coronavirus. What began as a new virus in the Hubei Province of China has spread to at least 37 locations, including here in the United States. On January 30, the World Health Organization declared the outbreak a Public Health Emergency of International Concern.

I take the safety of Pennsylvanians and Americans incredibly seriously, which is why I am calling for immediate action from Congress and the White House. I've also compiled helpful resources and recommendations for Pennsylvanians to help keep our communities safe and healthy as the coronavirus continues to spread. As developments unfold, my team and I will update this page with new information for you and your loved ones. Like any major flu or respiratory virus, please follow the advice and recommendations of medical professionals to minimize and mitigate public health risks.

It is recommended Pennsylvanians take time to prepare now. Resources available here.
